ComplyGuard Networks Expands PCI Management Team

SAN ANTONIO, TX (August 31, 2010) – ComplyGuard Networks, a Qualified Security Assessor and Approved Scan Vendor providing leading PCI Data Security Standard products and services, announced today that Jim Bibles has joined its management team.

Over the past ten years, Bibles has excelled at developing and implementing risk-based compliance programs for Fortune 500 companies (including Wells Fargo, Visa, and Charles Schwab and Co.) and is widely considered to be an expert in the development and implementation of merchant PCI DSS compliance programs. Most recently, Bibles managed business development at Qualys for the QualysGuard PCI product, and prior managed PCI at Wells Fargo Merchant Services.

“ComplyGuard is about adding value to our clients,” said ComplyGuard Networks’ CEO Don Douglas. “Our customers and our industry will benefit greatly from Jim’s experience and leadership within the PCI community.”

Michael Johnson, President and Founder of ComplyGuard Networks, is optimistic about the company’s success and the Bible’s addition. “ComplyGuard Networks continues to break new ground as an Approved Scan Vendor (ASV) with several key client wins and our update of ComplyShield™ to meet the new ASV Operating Guidelines. Jim is a recognized thought leader in PCI Data Security compliance. We look forward to his contribution to our momentum.”

"I am very excited about joining the ComplyGuard Networks family" said Bibles. "I will be able to use my industry experience to develop products and programs to help prevent merchants from experiencing the heartache that comes with a data security breach. I have seen firsthand the damage a compromise inflicts on a merchant and their customers. The products and solutions we are building at ComplyGuard Networks are designed to prevent these types of events from occurring by keeping the merchant or services provider in compliance."
